O.J. Lawyer Cochran Dies

LOS ANGELES | Johnnie L. Cochran Jr., who became a legal superstar after helping clear O.J. Simpson during a sensational murder trial in which he uttered the famous quote "If it doesn't fit, you must acquit," died Tuesday. He was 67.

Cochran died of a brain tumor at his home in Los Angeles, his family said.

With his colorful suits and ties, his gift for courtroom oratory and a knack for coining memorable phrases, Cochran was a vivid addition to the pantheon of best-known American barristers.

The "if it doesn't fit" phrase would be quoted and parodied for years afterward. It derived from a dramatic moment during which Simpson tried on a pair of bloodstained "murder gloves" to show jurors they did not fit. Some legal experts called it the turning point in the trial.

Over the years, Cochran represented football great Jim Brown on rape and assault charges, actor Todd Bridges on attempted murder charges, rapper Tupac Shakur on a weapons charge and rapper Snoop Dogg on a murder charge. LINDA DEUTSCH (AP)

Infighting Roils Iraq Assembly

Raucous session highlights tensions in new parliament

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | In a chaotic session marred by shouting, finger-pointing and walkouts by Iraq's top leaders, the new parliament failed Tuesday to choose a speaker — an impasse that brought tensions to the surface and raised concerns about a government that still isn't in place two months after landmark elections.

The National Assembly's second meeting ever was certainly its stormiest — marked by outbursts of anger and wrangling among Shiite, Sunni and Kurdish legislators. The session was first delayed for nearly three hours, then abruptly closed to the media, its live TV feed cut off.

Al-Yawer

The Sunni Arab minority — dominant under former dictator Saddam Hussein and believed to be the backbone of the insurgency — was given until Sunday to come up with a candidate to serve as speaker of the 275-seat parliament.

Negotiators spent much of the morning trying to convince interim President Ghazi al-Yawer, a Sunni Arab, to take the speaker's post. But he refused, and is holding out for one of two vice presidential spots. Many in the assembly want an Arab Sunni to hold the position as a way of healing rifts with the Sunnis, many of whom boycotted the Jan. 30 elections.

DANCE

Have Fun, Look Completely Insane

Complaints from locals have led a British rock festival to implement a creative noise-containment plan: the silent disco, reported the Guardian newspaper. The Glastonbury music fest, slated for June, will allow attendees to dance all night, as long as they wear special-issue headphones. Only the dancers will be able to hear the music; outsiders will hear nothing and will be privy to quite a peculiar spectacle. "It is by all accounts hilarious," co-organizer Emily Eavis told the London Times. "Just imagine 2,000 people dancing with geeky headsets." (EXPRESS)

INFRACTIONS

Driving While Seven

A 7-year-old who apparently wanted to play with friends couldn't wait. The Enterprise, Ala., tyke drove off in his father's truck, eventually running it into a ditch before police officers managed to coax him out of the vehicle. The boy was driving the big, dual-wheel truck erratically along Highway 27 when other drivers called police Thursday morning, saying they couldn't see anyone behind the wheel. The boy got the keys while his father was sleeping, and he was trying to drive to a local day-care center, police said. Officers lured the child out by telling him they would take him to play with his friends, then took him to the police station instead. (AP)

Fashion pays homage to all variety of muses. This specimen, from a Tuesday show in Beijing for China's Fashion Week, begs speculation. Was the designer inspired by Oola, the dancing slave chained to Jabba the Hut's throne in "Return of the Jedi"? (She was of the race Twi'lek from the planet Ryloth, according to starwars.com.) Or perhaps the curious, cuddly, friendly dinosaurs of "The Land Before Time" — see them peaking around to look at the model's face? (EXPRESS)

CULTURE

Public Art Comes to Life ... and Won't Die

Remember the Chicago cows? The Cincinnati pigs? The giant frogs in Toledo, Ohio? And who could forget the Washington, D.C., pandas? Or the donkeys? Or the elephants? Now, some think it's time for Fargo, N.D., to get into the act with its own display of gigantic, ostensibly arty fiberglass animals: bison. Martha Olsen, executive director of the Lake Agassiz Arts Council, is talking with local businesses and artists to try to gauge community support. "We would want to make it as big and fun as it can be," she said. A similar project — "Sunny in DL," using sunfish as the theme — was a success in Detroit Lakes, Minn. Olsen said the sale or sponsorship of the bison sculptures would benefit the local arts community. Because every city needs a fiberglass animal to call its own. (AP/EXPRESS)

Chairman of Red Lake Chippewa confirms arrest of teen in probe

RED LAKE, MINN. | The chairman of the Red Lake band of Chippewa confirmed Tuesday that his son was arrested in connection with last week's deadly school shootings but maintained that the teen is innocent.

"My heart is heavy as a result of the tragic events that unfolded here at our nation," Floyd Jourdain Jr. said in a statement. "But it is with optimism that I state my son Louis' innocence. He is a good boy with a good heart, who never harmed anyone in his entire life."

The younger Jourdain, 16, was arrested on Sunday.

Jeff Weise, 16, killed nine people in an attack on the reservation on March 21 before taking his own life. Five of the dead were students, killed at the high school.

A government official briefed on the investigation told the Associated Press that prosecutors were contemplating charging Jourdain as an adult with conspiracy to commit murder. The official spoke only on condition of anonymity because the investigation is continuing.

Authorities began to suspect that Weise may not have plotted the attack by himself after examining e-mails he exchanged with Jourdain, this official said.

The Washington Post, citing two unidentified law enforcement officials familiar with the investigation, reported Tuesday that Louis Jourdain was suspected of helping Weise plan the assault and had expected to take part. (AP)

Jackson Joins Protests for Schiavo

PINELLAS PARK, FLA. | As Terri Schiavo entered her 12th full day without food or water, a prominent civil rights leader prayed with her parents and joined conservatives in calling for state lawmakers to order her feeding tube reinserted.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson was invited by Schiavo's parents to meet with activists outside Schiavo's hospice. His arrival was greeted by some applause and cries of "This is about civil rights!"

Jackson's visit provided a boost to Schiavo's parents, who have maintained that she would want to be kept alive. Her husband, Michael Schiavo, insists he is carrying out her wishes by having the feeding tube pulled.

Terri Schiavo's father, Bob Schindler, described his daughter as "failing" after his visit Tuesday.

BOOSTER: The Rev. Jesse Jackson, left, speaks to reporters alongside Mary and Bob Schindler, Terri Schiavo's parents, in Pinellas Park, Fla., on Tuesday.

"She still looks pretty darn good under the circumstances," Schindler said. "You can see the impact of no food and water for 12 days. Her bodily functions are still working. We still have her."

Doctors have said Terri Schiavo, 41, would probably die within a week or two of the tube being removed.

Intel Commission To Blame Lack Of Info Sharing

WASHINGTON | President Bush's commission on weapons of mass destruction will castigate U.S. intelligence agencies for their continued failure to share information after numerous reforms aimed at improving coordination, federal officials said Tuesday.

One official familiar with the commission's workings, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the report also goes into great detail on why prewar intelligence on Iraq's weapons programs turned out to be flawed. The report is scheduled to be released Thursday.

The report examines several factors the official said, such as whether policy-makers were seeking preconceived conclusions. (AP)

High Court Expands Title IX Rules

Justices say landmark gender equity law also shields whistleblowers

WASHINGTON | A closely divided Supreme Court ruled Tuesday that a teacher or coach who claims sexual discrimination on behalf of others is protected from firing under the same landmark law that greatly expanded athletic opportunities for women.

The 5-4 decision expands the scope of the Title IX gender equity law to protect whistleblowers. It means that school officials, regardless of their gender, may sue when they suffer retaliation for complaining about discrimination.

Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, writing for the majority, said Alabama high school girls basketball coach Roderick Jackson was entitled to pursue a Title IX lawsuit after he was fired for complaining that the boys team received better treatment.

The Supreme Court ruled in favor of Alabama girls high school basketball coach Roderick Jackson's right to sue.

"Teachers and coaches such as Jackson are often in the best position to vindicate the rights of their students because they are better able to identify discrimination and bring it to the attention of administrators," O'Connor wrote.

The 1972 Title IX law bars sex discrimination in any school program receiving federal funds. The law already held that students or others could sue if they thought they were shortchanged based on their

→ The Supreme Court heard arguments Tuesday on whether Internet file-sharing services should be held responsible for their customers' illegal swapping of copyrighted songs and movies. In a lively debate, some justices expressed concerns about whether the threat of such legal action might stifle future Web innovation. Justices wondered whether such lawsuits might have discouraged past inventions like videocassette recorders and iPods — all of which can be used to make duplications of copyrighted materials. (AP)

Drug Stash Found In La. Family's Car

SLIDELL, LA. | A reliable family car suddenly developed a tendency to decelerate, leading to the discovery that it had been driven for years with $40,000 worth of cocaine stashed in the gas tank.

A suburban New Orleans family had bought the 1996 Toyota Camry from a used car lot in 1997.

When the car started losing speed, it was taken to a mechanic, who discovered two bricks of cocaine wrapped around the vehicle's fuel line.

Child Porn Charge for Ex-Scout

Former official accused of receiving images of children having sex

DALLAS | A former high-ranking Boy Scouts of America official has been charged with possession and distribution of child pornography.

Douglas Sovereign Smith Jr., 61, who as program director coordinated scouting programs with schools and churches, was accused of receiving images over the Internet in February of children engaging in oral sex, intercourse and other sexually explicit conduct. The charges were filed by federal prosecutors March 21.

"We're shocked and dismayed to learn of this," said Gregg Shields, national spokesman for the Boy Scouts, based in Irving, Texas. "Smith was employed by the Boy Scouts for 39 years and we had no indication of prior criminal activity."

Law enforcement officials indicated the pictures did not show boys who were with the Boy Scouts organization, Shields said.

Smith's job did not involve working directly with children, Shields said. Smith was put on leave immediately after the Boy Scouts officials learned of charges, then chose to retire, he said.

Smith was expected to appear in federal court Wednesday. (AP)

Feeling 'Exonerated,' U.N. Chief Defiant

Asked if he'll resign over oil-for-food probe, Annan says 'Hell, no'

UNITED NATIONS | Investigators probing the U.N. oil-for-food program said Tuesday that Secretary-General Kofi Annan didn't interfere in the awarding of a contract to a company that employed his son, but their report criticized the U.N. chief for not properly investigating possible conflicts of interest.

Asked if he was planning to step down, Annan replied with a rare use of profanity, saying "Hell, no" and noting the report's findings that he committed no wrongdoing.

"After so many distressing and untrue allegations have been made against me, this exoneration by the independent inquiry obviously comes as a great relief," he said.

But the investigation led by former U.S. Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker did not completely vindicate the secretary-general.

Although it found no wrongdoing by Annan, it clearly faulted the secretary-general's management of the world body and his oversight of the scandal-ridden oil-for-food program in Saddam Hussein's Iraq.

The report raised questions about when the secretary-general learned about the December 1998 contract to the Swiss firm, Cotecna Inspection S.A., though it said there was insufficient evidence that he was aware of the company's bid. It also strongly criticized the destruction of documents by his former chief of staff that could have shed light on the oil-for-food program.

The independent inquiry, released Tuesday, also faulted Annan for conducting a one-day investigation into the matter, saying it should have been a more rigorous, independent probe.

The report is the second issued by Volcker's team. EDITH M. LEDERER (AP)

Gaza Plan Closer to Enactment

Sharon's budget OK'd by parliament, clearing last legislative hurdle

JERUSALEM | Israel's parliament removed the last legislative obstacle before implementation of this summer's pullout from Gaza and part of the West Bank, easily passing the tardy state budget and saving Prime Minister Ariel Sharon's government from collapse.

The vote late Tuesday was 58-36 with one abstention, a misleadingly wide margin for a government battered by opposition to the pullout plan.

Sharon

If the budget had not passed by Thursday, Sharon would have had to resign, delaying or scuttling the withdrawal.

On Monday, the parliament rebuffed efforts to call a referendum, which would have delayed the pullout for months and might have brought down Sharon's government.

With the end of the parliamentary maneuvering, settlers and their backers pledged to take to the streets with their struggle against the plan to remove all 21 Jewish settlements from Gaza and four from the West Bank. MARK LAVIE (AP)

FAREWELL: A man grieves over his wife's body Tuesday at a makeshift morgue in Gunung Sitoli on Nias Island, Indonesia.

Indian Ocean Quake Leaves Trail of Grief

Officials say death toll could be as high as 2,000

GUNUNG SITOLI, INDONESIA | Datot Mendra planned to spend one final night lying next to his wife before burying her, along with his sister and two other relatives.

"What will I tell my children?" the 55-year-old said. "I can't face it."

Mendra's wife was among some 20 bodies wrapped in white sheets and laid out on the street outside the Santa Maria church in this town on Indonesia's predominantly Roman Catholic Nias Island.

Most of the deaths from Monday night's 8.7-magnitude earthquake in the Indian Ocean were on Nias, 75 miles south of the epicenter. By the end of Tuesday, the island's death toll stood at about 330, but officials said it could climb as high as 2,000.

Elsewhere on the island of 600,000 off the west coast of Indonesia's Sumatra island, the earthquake wrought mass destruction and carnage. Smoke drifted out of piles of rubble and concrete homes whose walls have folded in on themselves — almost certainly crushing to death anybody inside. (AP)

3 Journalists From Romania Reported Kidnapped in Iraq

BUCHAREST, ROMANIA | Three Romanian journalists have been kidnapped in Baghdad, the government said Tuesday in a development that could test the resolve of President Traian Basescu, whose administration recently dispatched an extra 100 troops to Iraq.

The journalists had finished interviewing Iraq's interim Prime Minister Ayad Allawi hours earlier when one of them sent an ominous text message back to her newsroom: "Help, this is not a joke, we've been kidnapped."

The three were abducted Monday night near their Baghdad hotel, officials said. They were identified as reporter Marie Jeanne Ion, 32, and cameraman Sorin Dumitru Miscoci, 30, from Bucharest-based television station Prima TV, and Romania Libera reporter Ovidiu Ohanesian, 37. (AP)

Kyrgyz Leader May Resign

In Russia after being ousted, Akayev says he may officially bow out

BISHKEK, KYRGYZSTAN | Ousted President Askar Akayev surfaced in Russia after fleeing this Central Asian nation and said Tuesday he would resign if given legal protections — the first sign he is willing to yield power.

Akayev, who fled after protesters seized government headquarters last week, also accused his foes of plotting his overthrow for months. Interim leader Kurmanbek Bakiyev said the storming of the government headquarters was never planned, and he called for an official inquiry.

In an interview with Russia's state-run Channel One television, Akayev emphasized he is Kyrgyzstan's legitimate leader and suggested he would keep a hand in its fragile politics. Asked whether he was prepared to step down, he replied: "Of course, of course — if I am given the relevant guarantees and if it is in full accordance with the current legislation."

The comments suggested Akayev could resign to give legitimacy to a new leader, but also left the door open for more political maneuvering by a leader who was reviled by an increasing portion of the populace as his 15 years in power wore on.

Seal Hunt Starts in Canada

Along with perennial fight between hunters, animal rights activists

TORONTO | Thousands of sealers headed for the ice floes off eastern Canada on Tuesday for the world's largest seal hunt, one expected to bring the poor coastal communities some $16 million, but condemned by animal rights activists as barbaric.

The harp seal hunt, the target of protests since the 1960s, begins about two weeks after the seal pups are born and their fur changes from white to gray. Activists say the pups are clubbed to death and often skinned alive, but sealers and government officials who monitor the hunt insist the pups die instantly, under strict guidelines.

Hunters were expected to kill more than 300,000 seals by May 15. Canada's Department of Fisheries and Oceans says the country's seal population is "healthy and abundant," and says there are an estimated 5 million harp seals, nearly the highest level ever recorded. (AP)

MCI Opts for Verizon Offer

Goes for $7.6B bid despite a sweeter offer from rival Qwest

NEW YORK | Verizon has won the bidding for MCI Inc. a second time, agreeing to pay $1 billion more for the long-distance telephone company, but still considerably less than a rival bid from Qwest.

MCI's stock shot higher after the $7.64 billion deal was announced, surpassing the $23.50 price per share Verizon agreed to pay.

Qwest, the smallest of the nation's four big local phone companies, said it will reassess the situation, but reiterated its position that its offer of $8.45 billion, or $26 per share, is superior.

The new agreement increases the amount of cash MCI stockholders will receive for their shares while guaranteeing a minimum value for the Verizon shares that they'll get as the balance of the payment.

This is now the second time MCI has opted for a lower payment from Verizon out of concern about Qwest's questionable financial health and business prospects. When MCI's board accepted Verizon's original $6.75 billion offer in mid-February, it did so with an $8 billion bid on the table from Qwest.

New York-based Verizon tried to hold its ground on price after the initial agreement even as Qwest rallied some MCI investors to agitate for the higher-priced bid.

'89 Murder Still a Mystery

Va. police continue to search for suspect in teen's death near I-95

WASHINGTON | Sixteen years ago Thursday, Sue Baker found her daughter's partially clothed body in a wooded area just off Interstate 95 in Northern Virginia.

Two weeks after celebrating her 18th birthday, Amy Baker was sexually assaulted and strangled. Her killer has never been found.

Now, on the anniversary of her death, Fairfax County police are hoping someone will come forward to help close the case.

It began March 29, 1989, when Amy had trouble with her baby blue Volkswagen Beetle while traveling home to Stafford from her aunt's house in Falls Church.

According to police, Amy pulled over on the shoulder of I-95 near the Backlick Road exit in Springfield, and began walking toward a gas station. She never made it.

Officer Shelly Broderick, a spokeswoman for Fairfax County Crime Solvers, said police are still actively investigating and want to speak with someone who contacted authorities on April 3, 1996, shortly after an article about Amy appeared in the Fredericksburg Free Lance-Star.

Police believe the caller knew something about the case, but would not provide details.

Anyone with information about the case is asked to call 1-800-673-2777. Along with a $1,000 reward from Crime Solvers, the family is offering $25,000. BRIAN WESTLEY (AP)

Md. Bill Would Raise Driving Penalties

ANNAPOLIS, MD. | Driving recklessly or while under the influence of alcohol would get a lot more costly in Maryland under a bill approved by the Senate on Tuesday

In addition to paying the usual fines and court costs, motorists convicted of traffic violations under a bill sponsored by Sen. Rob Garagiola, D-Montgomery, would be assessed new penalties that could add as much as $900. Police departments, emergency response agencies and fire departments would get 25 percent of the money raised, with the rest going to the state's transportation fund. (AP)

Riggs to Pay $16M Fine For Dictators' Dealings

Bank failed to report suspicious transactions; more charges likely

WASHINGTON | A federal judge on Tuesday approved a $16 million criminal fine against Riggs Bank for failing to report suspicious transactions involving foreigners. The plea agreement closes a chapter for the bank, which is expected to disappear soon as an independent concern.

U.S. District Judge Ricardo Urbina ruled that Riggs is being punished enough for its admitted misconduct, which included dealings with former Chilean dictator Augusto Pinochet and his family.

A federal prosecutor said at the hearing that new charges will be brought in the near future against individuals involved in the Riggs affair, based in large part on information obtained through the bank's cooperation in the ongoing criminal investigation.

Riggs pleaded guilty Jan. 27 to a criminal felony charge. The $16 million fine that Riggs agreed to pay immediately is the largest criminal penalty of that type ever imposed on a bank the size of Riggs — a midsize institution with some $6.4 billion in assets — according to Justice Department prosecutors.

Falwell in Critical Condition

Religious leader fighting viral pneumonia again

LYNCHBURG, VA. | The Rev. Jerry Falwell was hospitalized in critical condition Tuesday, battling his second case of viral pneumonia in just five weeks, hospital and church officials said.

Falwell, 71, was admitted to Lynchburg General Hospital shortly before midnight Monday suffering from "respiratory arrest," the hospital said in a statement, meaning his breathing had slowed or stopped.

"His cardiac status is stable and there is no evidence of a heart attack," said hospital spokesman Tom Urtz, reading from a statement.

"Rev. Falwell is clinically stable, but is still critically ill," he said.

Ron Godwin, Falwell's executive assistant, said Falwell was Jonathan Falwell, son of Jerry Falwell, outside the Lynchburg, Va., hospital.

"on a respirator and he's resting comfortably."

Doctors said they expected to have a clearer prognosis Wednesday.

Falwell, the founder of the Moral Majority and Liberty University, had left the hospital March 4 after 13 days, spending part of the time on a ventilator.

In a recent interview with The Associated Press, Falwell said he was feeling much better but still recovering from his hospital stay.

Improved Wizards Remain Guarded

Washington's Hughes, Arenas say they're the NBA's best backcourt

WIZARDS | Larry Hughes and Gilbert Arenas have evolved into the NBA's top backcourt pairing and are keeping the Washington Wizards among the top teams in the Eastern Conference.

"We're No. 1. You can put us up against anybody in the league," Hughes said after scoring 25 points in the Wizards 114-106 win over the Portland Trail Blazers Monday night.

Hughes and Arenas make up the league's highest-scoring starting backcourt at 47.5 points per game.

"No one's matching up with us. We're first and everyone is fighting to be second and third," Arenas said.

Hughes, the sixth-leading scorer in the NBA at 25.5 points, and Arenas, averaging 22.0 points, have had even more responsibility lately, picking up the slack for the short-handed Wizards.

Washington is without Brendan Haywood (fractured thumb) for at least two weeks. Third-leading scorer and leading rebounder Antawn Jamison has missed eight straight games with tendinitis in his right knee, and is not expected back for another week.

Thanks to Monday's win, Washington — which plays eight of its next 12 games at home — completed its first winning Western Conference road trip since 1999-2000, winning three of five games.

The team is also one game ahead of the Chicago Bulls for fourth place in the Eastern Conference.

"I hope our fans back in D.C. realize we are starting a new era in Washington," coach Eddie Jordan said. (AP)

Galarraga Calls It a Career

Andres Galarraga retired Tuesday after a subpar spring training with the New York Mets, leaving him a homer shy of 400 for his career. The 43-year-old first baseman signed a minor league deal with the Mets in the offseason after making his second successful return from non-Hodgkin's lymphoma last season. A five-time All-Star in a 19-year career, Galarraga was hitting just .235 in 17 games for the Mets this spring. (AP)

Nats Send Chavez to The Minors

Struggling outfielder demoted as Robinson tries to fix the offense

NATIONALS | The Washington Nationals sent outfielder Endy Chavez to Triple-A New Orleans on Tuesday, shaking up a struggling lineup less than a week before opening day.

Chavez had been expected to start in center field and hit in the leadoff spot. But he struggled this spring, with a .212 batting average, a .257 on-base percentage and only two walks. Last season, he hit .277 and stole 32 bases for the Expos.

His problems in the exhibition season have contributed to the team's lackluster attack. The Nationals scored just 11 runs over six games heading into Tuesday night's game against the New York Mets. "We just felt like he wasn't doing the job we needed him to do at the top of the lineup," Washington manager Frank Robinson said.

Washington also optioned right-handers Gary Majewski and Jon Rauch to its top minor league affiliate, finalizing the 11-man pitching staff and getting the roster down to 26 players, one over the limit. (AP)

U.S. Squad Gets Breath of Fresh Air

After loss in Mexico, Americans host big match vs. Guatemala

SOCCER | The U.S. soccer team has a new altitude and a new attitude this week.

Following a 2-1 defeat in the smog at Mexico City's Estadio Azteca, 7,200 feet above sea level, the Americans practiced on Monday at the University of Alabama-Birmingham for Wednesday night's World Cup qualifier against Guatemala at Legion Field.

"We all took a big, deep breath when we got off the plane," U.S. captain Claudio Reyna said. "I think after the week, two weeks in some cases, the guys got at altitude, that we're going to be very fit now coming back to sea level."

Birmingham is 640 feet above sea level, and getting back to the United States was, well, a breath of fresh air.

Following two road games, the Americans are tied for third with Costa Rica in the final round of qualifying in the North and Central American and Caribbean region, trailing Mexico (2-0) and Guatemala (1-0-1). The top three teams advance to the 32-nation field for next year's tournament in Germany, and the fourth-place team goes to a playoff against an Asian nation. RONALD BLUM (AP)

Villanueva Leaves UConn. for Draft

NBA DRAFT | Two years ago, Charlie Villanueva thought he was ready for the NBA. Now, he says he's sure.

It will be the second time Villanueva has gone through the NBA evaluation process. Coming out of Blair Academy in Blairstown, N.J., in 2003, Villanueva declared for the draft, but changed his mind after workouts in front of NBA scouts.

"I knew I wasn't ready," Villanueva said. "I know I have to work on my body, to get stronger, but I'm 100 percent confident this time. I didn't have that feeling coming out of high school." (AP)

'60 Minutes' Connects Panthers to Steroids

DOPING | Carolina Panthers Todd Sauerbrun and Jeff Mitchell and former player Todd Steussie had steroid prescriptions filled by a South Carolina doctor now under investigation by federal authorities, according to a "60 Minutes Wednesday" report.

In a release Tuesday, the show said the players all had prescriptions for testosterone cream filled within two weeks of the Panthers' appearance in the 2004 Super Bowl.

In addition to the cream, which is banned by the NFL, Sauerbrun — one of the league's top punters — also obtained syringes and the injectable steroid Stanozolol, which is also banned by the league.

Mitchell, a center, filled a testosterone prescription seven times, while Steussie, an offensive lineman with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, obtained 11 refills over an eight-month period in 2004, CBS reported.

The prescriptions were reportedly written by Dr. James Shortt, who is the subject of a Drug Enforcement Administration probe for allegedly prescribing steroids. (AP)

O's Tejada Takes the Lead

In second year with Baltimore, shortstop takes Ripken's mantle

ORIOLES | The Baltimore Orioles signed Miguel Tejada because of his potent bat and Cal Ripken-like endurance. Tejada satisfied both requirements in 2004, and delivered an unexpected bonus: much-needed leadership.

Tejada hit .311 with 34 homers and a major league-leading 150 RBIs last season, and ranked third in the AL in total bases (349), fourth in extra-base hits (76) and fifth in multi-hit games (58).

"He gave a lot on offense, he gave a lot on defense, and he was great in the clubhouse," Orioles first baseman Rafael Palmeiro said.

Tejada won the AL MVP Award with Oakland in 2002, but the Athletics didn't have enough money to keep him after his contract expired. So he signed a six-year, $72 million contract with the Orioles in December 2003.

He has no second thoughts

Tejada has played in 756 straight games, keeping a tradition for O's shortstops.

about leaving.

"It was the right move," he says. "I never had a year like I had last season, and the reason is because I'm happy where I am. The most important thing is the people in Baltimore give a lot of respect every time that I take the field."

Maybe it's because Orioles fans can appreciate a shortstop who never takes a day off. Ripken owns the major-league mark of playing in 2,632 consecutive games; Tejada hasn't missed a game since May 31, 2000. He has played in 756 straight — the longest active streak in the majors and 11th-longest in history.

No Surprises For Top Seller

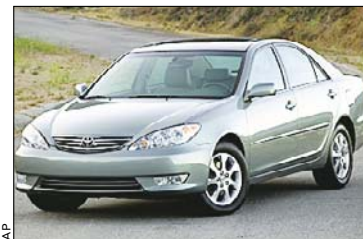

2005 brings small upgrades to the safe, steady, staid Camry

ROAD TEST | The top-selling car in the United States for seven of the last eight years, Toyota Camry is outselling all competitors so far this year, with more than 60,000 sales tallied early in calendar 2005.

For 2005, the Camry front styling is updated with a new grille and headlamps for a more prominent appearance, while circular lighting elements jazz up the tail-lamps.

Four-cylinder Camry cars get a five-speed automatic, improving acceleration and fuel economy.

Safety is upgraded, too, with antilock brakes now standard and stability control available for the first time on four-cylinder cars, not just those with a V6.

The best Beltway camouflage available.

Starting MSRP, including destination charge, is $18,735 for a base 2005 Camry, which has a four-cylinder engine and a manual transmission. Four trim levels — standard, LE, SE and XLE — and three engines are available.

Consumers get the best fuel mileage with the 2.4-liter four cylinder model, rated at a commendable 24/34 mpg with five-speed automatic transmission. This is up from 23/32 in last year's Camry with four-speed automatic. ANN M. JOB (AP)

SHINY AND MANAGEABLE: The toilers at the "Beauty Shop" have nothing to say, and say it in a grating, stereotypical manner.

It's Pretty Ugly

'Beauty Shop' has none of the bounce of 'Barbershop 2'

FILM | Just one degree of separation now exists between Queen Latifah and Kevin Bacon. After seeing "Beauty Shop," you'll wish they'd never met.

Bacon embarrasses himself here as the effeminate Austrian owner of an upscale Atlanta salon, whose cruel treatment prompts Latifah's Gina Norris, the hairstylist she played in "Barbershop 2," to open her own shop.

Gina's new staff consists of head-rolling, finger-wagging, chicken-and-waffle-eating stereotypes, with a clientele of white women who want to be just like them. Mena Suvari plays an uppity socialite who flirts ruthlessly with Gina's lone male employee, James (Bryce Wilson). Andie MacDowell crams collard greens into her mouth and ends up with an enviable booty.

Worst of all is Alicia Silverstone as Lynn, the salon's only white styl-ist, who ultimately earns her colleagues' approval when she starts wearing her hair in elaborate styles like theirs and talking through the morass of a fake-sounding Southern twang. So much for accepting people for their differences.

It's easy to imagine why hip-hop-star-turned-actress Latifah would be drawn to this project — she's also a producer — based on the success of the "Barbershop" films and their spirited social commentary, at least in the first one.

Here, stylists including the perennially pregnant Ida (Sherri Shepherd) and the earthy Miss Josephine (Alfre Woodard) discuss topics like the need for bikini waxes and whether the metrosexual James is gay. The movie does have, however, the admirable message of appreciating female beauty in all its shapes and sizes.

Latifah manages to eke out a modicum of grace amid the hackneyed antics — though the repeated mention of a cosmetics line the actress endorses is shameless. Paige Hurd also emerges unscathed as Gina's daughter, as does Djimon Hounsou as the impossibly hot electrician who lives above the salon.

Seeing Latifah's charisma turned on full-blast, as it was in her Oscar-nominated "Chicago" performance, makes you long for something better for her, and for black women who are tired of having Hollywood depict them in such a clichéd

way. CHRISTY LEMIRE (AP)

Enter the Matrix in Cool Threads

VIDEO GAMES | You've watched the movies. Now you can jack in and play it — no cranial implants required.

After months of testing and two years since the sequels, the persistent virtual reality of "The Matrix Online" is available for U.S. gamers.

A brief reintroduction for those still scratching their heads after "The Matrix Revolutions": When we last saw Neo, aka The One, he made a truce with the evil machines and saved the last bastion of humanity in the underground city of Zion.

A revised Matrix was formed after the renegade, replicating Agent Smith was defeated, and we saw the machines carting off Neo's corpse to points unknown. Did he die? And what about all those people still unwittingly serving as batteries for the machines?

That's just part of the murky mystery in "The Matrix Online," where players can choose to ally with the Machines, the Exiles or residents of Zion for control of the new system.

The kung fu combat and gravity-defying battles take place in the same steel-gray world of towering skyscrapers and urban grit called

LOOKING GOOD: In the battleground of the game, a man can stand out.

MegaCity.

It's not all dreariness, though — there are plenty of opportunities for aspiring fashion designers, said lead game designer Toby Ragaini.

Once they enter the Matrix, players can fully customize their characters, selecting gender, hair style, body shape, tattoos and clothing. Lots and lots of clothing. There's gothic garb galore, with snake skin body suits, reflective sunglasses, hats — and the trademark black trench coats.

"One thing we can offer is a sense of cool," said the online game's writer, Paul Chadwick. MATT SLAGLE (AP)

MERCURY RISING, SORT OF: It's not Queen without Freddie Mercury, but two original members of the pomp-rock band are hitting the road without the flamboyant singer anyway, calling themselves "Queen + Paul Rodgers." Rodgers, vocalist for '70s band Free, will not be "trying to impersonate Freddie in any way," drummer Roger Taylor insisted.

AN IMPRINT OF OWN'S OWN: Carter has gone indie to refresh her rootsy rock.

Staking Out Her Country

After ditching major labels, singer Deana Carter does it her way

INDEPENDENCE | Most artists who make the move from a major label to an independent tout their newfound artistic freedom, but Deana Carter really means it.

On "The Story of My Life," her first album for Vanguard, Carter produced, wrote all the songs and played acoustic and electric guitar, bass and keyboards.

The album was recorded in the Los Angeles-area home of engineer James Michael. No one from the label heard a note of music until the album was finished.

Another element of Carter's newfound freedom is that the longtime EMI writer is now self-published, via her own Deanaling Music.

Carter burst onto the country music scene in 1996 with her multiplatinum Capitol Records debut, "Did I Shave My Legs for This?" and its No. 1 singles "Strawberry Wine" and "We Danced Anyway." She worked with Arista for the album "I'm Just a Girl."

At the majors, Carter said, she was discouraged from working with the producers of her choice and from singing her own songs.

At Vanguard, she said, "they were offering that [freedom]. I was like, 'Where do I sign?'"

Carter, a Nashville native, moved to Los Angeles a few years ago. And while the move didn't signal a shift away from country music, she says it did make her feel more free to experiment musically. "I can be myself without worrying about not being country enough."

PHYLIS STARK (BILLBOARD)

Laugh-a-Minute at NBC

Execs have a funny plan to revivify the Peacock Network

COMEDY CURE | It was 1992. The end of "The Cosby Show" and "The Golden Girls" helped topple NBC while new top dog CBS was reveling in the performance of "Murphy Brown" and "Designing Women."

NBC had little to laugh about. With its glory sitcoms out of the picture, the network had lost its number one ranking in viewership for the first time in six years.

Thirteen years later, the names have been changed but the story is the same. Stalwart comedies "Friends" and "Frasier" are gone and the peacock network is fending off CBS, Fox and even a resurgent ABC.

Having milked the last ratings ounce of "Friends," which returned for an abbreviated 16-episode season last year, its 10th, NBC was acutely aware a sinkhole was forming.

Now, the big push is for more laughs, not more crime on "Law & Order"-saturated NBC. For the upcoming season, NBC, under the aegis of network head of programming Kevin Reilly, literally redoubled its efforts to create winning shows. It formed two development teams, one looking at in-house production for new series and the other scanning the industry at large.

Reilly said last week he was optimistic because the network was acutely aware of the big picture: It isn't just NBC but situation comedy itself that needs a shot in the arm.

The comedy business has fallen "to an anemic state that hasn't been seen since the early '80s," Reilly said. He called "the stale creative scope of many of the comedies on the air" an opportunity for NBC.

Striking gold with one or two comedies, the most lucrative and recyclable TV genre, could make this a brief slump for NBC, experts said. Television, which is nothing if not cyclical, has seen it happen again and again. LYNN ELBER (AP)

WHO'S YOUR DADDY? The sweet-natured caretaker on "Frasier" is moving up in the world. Jane Leeves is set to star in "Best Laid Plans," for the WB network, as a woman whose daughter learns the truth about her father. (coughspermdonorcough)

All 'Eyes' on This

NBC's chic new drama offers an eye-ful of gadgetry

DEBUT | No, "Eyes" (10 p.m., ABC) isn't another drama about a blind cop. Tim Daly stars as Harlan Judd, a private eye in a super-high-tech firm with offices that look like they were borrowed from the Microsoft corporate campus.

"Eyes" has some interesting characters and some genuine plot twists, but the absurdly grandiose set tells us the new thriller is not grounded in economic reality or even common sense. The best private detectives used to work out of a desk containing nothing but a revolver and a flask.

Daly does his impish best to keep "Eyes" jumping. His ultra-slick agency is hard up for cash, so he takes on the case of a corporate embezzler. This being TV in the 21st century, the thief doesn't hightail it to Bermuda, but spends his ill-gotten gains in plain sight, hiring beves of prostitutes to keep him company.

"Eyes" offers a welter of subplots. One sleuth is sleeping with the sleuth wife of a private-eye colleague. Harlan's ex-boss-turned-arms dealer may or may not be trying to buy the firm, and apparently there is a spy in the nest of "Eyes." KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

ON TV TONIGHT

BEASTS ... AND THEIR PETS

SHOWDOG MOMS & DADS (10 p.m., Bravo) runs the gamut from the obvious to the pathetic. Among the four couples and their pooches, the dogs are the least high-strung. Plus, everyone is very aware of the ever-present cameras.

WAKE UP, AMERICA

AMERICAN DREAMS (8 p.m., NBC) Meg's boyfriend gets a letter from Uncle Sam. This marks the season finale and probable end of "Dreams."

BARTLET? LEO? WHO?

THE WEST WING (9 p.m., NBC) Bartlet asks Leo to bring order to an unruly convention.

WELL, DUH

LAW & ORDER (10 p.m., NBC) A depraved cult's practices lead to murders.

"Lost Treasures" explores the fate of such artifacts as the Bactrian Aphrodite.

PRECIOUS THINGS

"Lost Treasures of Afghanistan" on NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC (9 p.m., PBS) explores the heroic efforts of individuals to hide art and artifacts from the Taliban regime. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

Neighborhood design can combat both obesity and sprawl

Acquanetta Warren has learned a thing or two about body fat and upward mobility. A transplant from Los Angeles to Fontana, Warren has achieved the dream of suburbia — a three-car garage and a sweeping plot of green. But for several years, moving up meant barely moving under her own power. And that contributed to serious upward movement on her bathroom scale.

Now 50 pounds lighter than her heaviest weight, Warren — a City Council member in Fontana — is part of the emerging “active living by design” movement, in which assorted academics and public officials have joined forces to fight obesity. Simply put, they want to shape and retool communities to encourage walking and cycling as a part of everyday life. This focus on the “built environment” is the latest attempt to grasp the social and environmental factors that influence eating and exercise.

“If you want to get rid of fat America, then you have to change your built environment,” said Ron Sims, county executive of King County, Wash., which includes Seattle. “If your neighborhood is designed to get you home and into your house, you’re going to be a couch potato.”

Across the nation, the movement is working to coax Americans out of their cars. In Denver, for example, developers, city planners and public health officials are building a community that promotes everyday walking and biking on the site of an old airport. And in at least 18 states, the grass-roots Safe Routes to School has won public funding to improve sidewalks, crosswalks and bike paths that lead to schools.

James Sallis, a psychologist at San Diego State University, conducted one of the first studies to link a neighborhood’s structure and its residents’ fitness, comparing two San Diego neighborhoods. Although residents were similar in age, education and income, Normal Heights is considered to be a walkable neighborhood, while Clairemont is not.

On average, the Normal Heights residents got about 70 more minutes of exercise per week and were one point lower on the body-mass index. In Clairemont, about 60 percent of residents were overweight — almost exactly the national average. In Normal Heights, only 35 percent were. “I frankly was amazed at the difference,” Sallis said.

ANDREA BONIOR, PH.D.

Coulda, Shoulda

I have an ex I can't seem to get over. We were friends first — he was interested, I wasn't, then I was. We spent a blissful month together before he moved to California, and I clicked better with him than with anyone else I've ever dated. While I was kicking myself for not realizing this sooner, he met someone new and stopped returning my phone calls. That was almost three years ago. I still feel awful that I missed my chance with someone who fit me so perfectly. Should I contact him in case he's feeling the same way? Or is that a totally pathetic hope?

—GIRL WONDERS, D.C.

But he didn't fit you so perfectly: The 3,000 miles between you, the loss of contact and his attempt to fit with another woman all attest to that. It's understandable that you're having a hard time letting go, but it's not just him you're clinging to — it's the belief that being with him would've rescued you from whatever dissatisfaction you're feeling with your life. Like the high-school football star who constantly relives his fumble on the 3-yard line, you've got to realize that it wasn't just your actions that lost this game. And even a trophy win wouldn't have been all you're making it out to be. To move past this, you must figure out what's missing in your life — companionship, adventure, passion? — and start filling the void with something real in the here and now. Not, a la Tiffany, what "coulda been." Contact him only if you can view him for what he really is: an old friend with whom dating didn't work out, who might now have a ring, a kid or a rap sheet.

My sister is being treated for an eating disorder and recently requested that I attend a counseling session with her. I'm not sure what purpose this serves. It took her forever to agree to get help, and she took no initiative (we made all the arrangements). Is this her stepping back?

—BIG SIS IN VIENNA

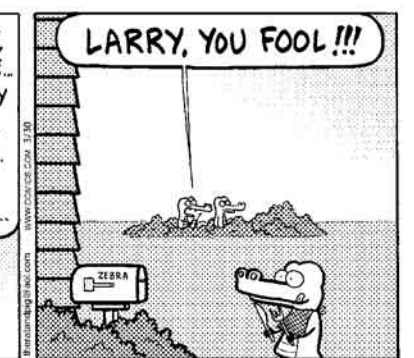

Absolutely not — it's her stepping forward. Family sessions are very common in the treatment of eating disorders, since family members will need to support the important emotional and behavioral changes the person is making. Please give your sister your support and lend an open ear and heart. It really is crucial to her recovery.

Too Much Jackson Coverage

I'M TIRED OF reading the useless daily updates on the trial of Michael Jackson, as featured on the cover of Tuesday's Express ("Jackson's Past In Play"). The case has been over-publicized enough and I really don't care about what outfit he was wearing or how he did his hair. There are more significant issues in the world, including the deaths of hundreds of people from Monday's earthquake in Indonesia. With all the devastation South Asia has faced, the story of another tragic event there should not have to share space on

LISA MARIE PRESLEY spoke Monday about her brief marriage to Michael Jackson while on "The Oprah Winfrey Show" to promote her new album. Presley said that the union, which lasted from 1994 to 1996, was real. "Do you think that he loved you as much as he could?" Oprah asked. "Yes, as much as he was capable of loving somebody," Presley replied. (AP)

It Is So Wonderful That We Must Shed a Little Tear

VH1 has selected seven new has-beens for the fifth season of "The Surreal Life," premiering Sept. 4. The lineup includes "America's Next Top Model" judge Janice Dickinson, former slugger Jose Canseco, Sandi "Pepa" Denton of Salt-n-Pepa, BRONSON PINCHOT from "Perfect Strangers" and Omarosa Manigault-Stallworth from the "The Apprentice." MARY-KATE and ASHLEY OLSEN are selling their $7.3 million Manhattan penthouse before they've even lived in it, People reported. "It turned out to be too much space, along with the fact that the renovation was going to take far longer than anyone expected," their publicist said. (AP)

"Maybe we can not live in a rowhouse next time," they thought.

WEIRD DYNAMIC 'You Look Like Me, So Let Me Undermine Your Power'

Japanese Prime Minister JUNICHIRO KOIZUMI had only one request when RICHARD GERE visited his office Tuesday: "Shall we dance?" Gere, who is in Japan to promote his latest film, accepted Koizumi's invitation, but insisted that he would lead. "I'll be the man," Gere said before they twirled for a few seconds in Koizumi's office. Koizumi has been called "the Japanese Richard Gere" because of his resemblance to the actor. Gere, 55, told reporters the prime minister was "charming" and "spontaneous." (AP)

And then, the world realized that Junichiro is much better-looking than Richard.

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Stability is increasing. You may want to try something new with a portion of your money.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You'll find yourself front-and-center, whether you like it or not. Now you'll learn whether you have what it takes to be a true leader.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You'll reach an important conclusion regarding your past performance on the job. Changes you've recently made begin paying off.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You may find it difficult to gather the forces of those around you and put them to use in a productive manner. Patience is a virtue.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may have to be a strict disciplinarian during a portion of the day, if only to win the respect you require before you are able to do your job.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may have to forgo your usual Friday entertainment to tend to some last-minute business and put the workweek to bed.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You have the opportunity to take on a new responsibility that will bring you much respect—but few tangible rewards.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You'll enjoy rejuvenation in your personal life as a result of shifting attitudes and the realization that you're only human.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You'll be required to be on the move today. Much of your work will be in preparation for something else.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This can prove a delightful day, provided you act fast during morning hours and prevent the build-up of unspoken resentments in others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You should be able to reap additional rewards from those past endeavors you thought were long finished. Read between the lines when given the chance.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) This is a good day for you to experiment with your self-image and sense of style. Make sure to avoid being overly dramatic.

great' ness (n.) - marked by outstanding achievement or importance.

We all aspire to it. For some it can take a lifetime. For others, it comes in an instant. For those who ride in the MS 150 Bike Tour, greatness comes from putting aside the reasons why they can't ride to find the reasons why they can. Reasons that bring hope to the 400,000 people living with MS.

This is why we ride.

What is greatness?

We invite you to find out for yourself. Come ride the MS 150 Bike Tour on May 21 & 22, 2005.

The Washington Post

great' ness (n.) - marked by outstanding achievement or importance.

We all aspire to it. For some it can take a lifetime. For others, it comes in an instant. For those who ride in the MS Bike Tour, greatness comes from putting aside the reasons why they can't ride to find the reasons why they can. Reasons that bring hope to the 400,000 people living with MS. This is why we ride.

What is greatness?

We invite you to find out for yourself. Come ride the MS Bike Tour on May 21 & 22, 2005.

To find out more, visit us at MSandYOU.org or call 202 296-5363.
